HOT PRESS

Have you ever attended the famous “Hot Press Training School”?
With instructor Steve Goodall, Mr. Hot Press himself.

Do you want to be able to get more from your press than just beautifully mounted prints? Are you up to date with all the latest techniques for adding value to your work? Do you have staff members that want to learn about mounting - laminating and more? Well this is their chance and yours!!!

If you have a hot press of virtually any description it can be used for a whole host of things. Mounting and laminating techniques are constantly being improved and new techniques are being developed all the time. We thought it would be a great time to remind everyone about our free training opportunities. We cover everything – from basic mounting and laminating – to fabric wrapping of mounts and transferring photographs or paper posters to canvas.

With such a comprehensive range it is easy to miss products that could make your life so much simpler and increase the value of the products that you produce.

Additionally, we will guide you through the maze of artwork types that you may encounter – telling you how to approach each kind of media and offer valuable tips that will improve the quality of your work.

Many companies experience staff changes from time to time and vital knowledge is often lost when people move on. Allow us to train your staff how to use your machinery to its full potential.

Training is a great motivator and shows your people that they are valued members of your team.

“Seeing is believing” as they say – but watching and doing are two very different things.

In our hands on sessions you will learn how to tackle all kinds of projects and then actually produce them for yourself. We provide everything you need – including lunch – so why not take the time to catch up on all the latest products and techniques, on our superb training days.
